

Living out Your Childhood Dreams

Key Takeaways

- Don't wait until you're living out your childhood dreams to use your gifts, talents, and passions for the benefit of others. Find ways to be a good steward of what God has given you RIGHT WHERE YOU ARE.
- Don't let your location limit you. Don't paralyze your passions because the situation isn't ideal.
- Trust God's timing, and trust the journey. God is more concerned about the person you're becoming along the way. If He placed a dream in your heart, you can be confident that dream will come into being in His time, and in His way! It may look completely different than what you had in mind, but it will be so much better.
- As Gracie said, no two stories will be the same...but every story will be full and beautiful if God holds the pen!
- Risks are worth taking; faith is taking the leap knowing you'll be falling into the arms of your Savior.
- Don't let failure define you or your potential. Let it shape you. Learn from your mistakes and leverage every lesson.
- Keep showing up, even when it seems hopeless. When it comes to doing what you're passionate about and what you feel you were made to do, it's okay to be stubborn. Be relentless. Be persistent.
- Put in the effort behind closed doors. Side-hustle if you have to. Be willing to do the hard things nobody will ever see or know about...accept the fact you won't get credit!

REMEMBER: We were created for a purpose...and we make a Kingdom difference by being good stewards and using our gifts, talents, and passions for the benefit of others. Don't settle for less than God's best for you. This is not all there is.
